

Abstract

Described is a control unit and an acceleration sensor system, the control unit having an electronic safety switch which, as a function of a signal of an acceleration sensor system, releases output stages for actuating passenger protection means independently of a processor
5 and the processor actuates the output stages as a function of the signal. The safety switch analyzes an integrated acceleration signal.

(Figure 1)